NHS Shropshire, Telford and Wrekin ICB are not obliged to provide information which relates to an ongoing procurement process. In this case, we believe that the information would, or would be likely to, prejudice the commercial interests of the ICB (section 43(2) of the Act).

In line with the terms of these exemption in the Freedom of Information Act, we have also considered whether it would be in the public interest for us to provide you with the information, despite the exemptions being applicable. In this case, we have concluded that the public interest favours withholding the information. You can find out more about Section 43 by reading the extract from the Act and some guidance points we consider when applying this exemption along with more information by reading the full text of the Act, available at:
<http://www.legislation.gov.uk/ukpga/2000/36/section/43>

When assessing whether or not it was in the public interest to disclose the information to you, we took into account the following factors:

Public interest considerations favouring disclosure

- The FOIA requires that public sector organisations are open and transparent in relation to their business making decisions.
- Public have an interest in knowing how public funds are spent and know that funds are being used appropriately.

Public interest considerations favouring withholding the information

- The information requested forms part of a providers bid submitted as part of a competitive procurement process under the Provider Selection Regime (PSR). This information is commercially confidential and includes the providers delivery and financial model which if released would give other bidders/providers an unfair advantage in any future procurement processes which would not be in the public interest. In addition, this would leave the ICB open to being challenged legally in sharing information, which was provided as part of a confidential, legally binding procurement process.
- At present, we remain at the representation phase within a live procurement process which could result in a referral to the NHS England panel. NHSE have the ability to review and could advise that the ICB re-run the procurement OR go back to an earlier phase. To release any information at this stage whilst the procurement is live would give other bidders an advantage.
- Disclosure of the information may allow others to undercut competitors that would impact on future quality and service that the ICB receives. This would also apply for other commissioners looking to competitively procure for these services.
- Release of this information would mean that the ICB is unable to undertake its legal and statutory duties by conducting a fair and transparent procurement process to secure services in the best interest of the population.

- Disclosure of the information may allow others to undercut competitors that would impact on future quality and service that the ICB receives.
- It would be likely to damage the third parties abilities to win new business because other parties would be aware of the margins of its delivery model alongside the operational delivery model and its digital innovations.
- There would also likely be an impact on the ICB's future ability to run a fair and transparent procurement process for the service.

Having considered the arguments for and against disclosure, NHS Shropshire, Telford and Wrekin ICB decided that the public interest in this case is best served by maintaining the exemption and by not disclosing the information requested.

NHS Shropshire, Telford and Wrekin ICB considers that the link between disclosure and prejudice has substance and would have effect on the applicable interest which the third party organisation have confirmed as being likely to damage their ability to win new business and potentially deprive them of income and be harmful to their commercial interests.

Post-awarding of the contract, the ICB are required under PSR to publish the contract for these services as part of our transparency on the Find a Tender portal, therefore the details in terms of the service and finances will be publicly available at this point in time once the procurement process is completed.

We reached the view that, on balance, the public interest is better served by withholding this information under Section 43(2).
